For some secular-minded people, the human sciences appear to expose a person's moral judgments to be nothing more than an expression of their subjective preferences. In this HSV address, Leslie Allan reveals a central objective dimension to moral debates.
He argues that by ignoring the place of impartiality in moral discourse, we misconstrue the nature of ethics and Aesthetic Taste. Taste is the most common trope when talking about the intellectual judgment of an object's aesthetic merit. This popularity rose to an unprecedented degree in the eighteenth century, which is the main focus of this article.
